

The Three Cogs of California

The following prophetic word about California was given by Rachael Hickson in 2004 in Tulare, CA:

I see 3 large wheels like the cogs of a clock but these wheels turn water. There is one in the North, one in the Central and one in the South. I feel that this is the time that the North cog is getting established and positioned. This North cog has 7 teeth - I feel that this represents key relationships that will come together, but the 7 represents the perfect timing - the completion - the fullness of time. As these teeth of the cogs move into position I see each tooth like a puppet that has to cut its various strings to get into correct alignment. These strings represent wrong mind-sets, wrong priorities and even adjustment of past relationships. There is a new alignment and positioning of the teeth for this water cog. But as these teeth walk out of their strings - like Pinocchio and become alive and then the water cog of the North is positioned.

I feel the cog of the central region is essential for aligning the North and South. The south in many ways already has its cog and teeth coming together but not attached to the North and Central but the Central cog is key for the alignment of the State and to be a bridge a pivot for the turning of the State. The North cog will have a strong relationship graced with power - this area will turn the power on in the State - signs, wonders and evangelism. Training centers for harvest! The central cog will have a strong cry of worship, prayer and intimacy mixed with the war cry for deliverance. A challenge for the occult and satanic powers. The South cog will have a strong mix of all the others but with also strong grace for generations and nations and they will be partnerships of the Isaac and Jacob (parents and youth) generation. Also the nations will work together for the kingdom.

As these 3 cogs come together and work - the North cog will begin to turn the water and this water will cascade from the North to the South and it will affect the North West. California will lead the way - California will turn - this is a turning time for the State.
